Roster of Pioneers of 1847

On July 12, 1862, Sarah married John Charles as his second wife. Tafton family tradition says Sarah was well known to John and Caroline because she had worked as their housekeeper in England. John and Sarah only had one son in April of 1863.

We are not certain of their living arrangements, whether Sarah lived in a separate home or if both families lived together. But both families moved to Manti and occupied a residence below the Southward slope of Temple Hill. After Caroline died in April, 1871, Sarah took over the care of Caroline's children when Caroline's son, George Wilburne, was not yet six years old.

No information has ever been available to us covering her life before coming to Utah and really very little after that. This is very unfortunate, because, Sarah and thousands of other great pioneer mothers like her, accomplished what seems to us to be impossible in just surviving the hardships and enduring with their families. The details of what they did and what they accomplished are not known. We only know that we appreciate whatever they did to endure and what they did accomplish.

James Taylor inherited several pieces of property, including a home and garden in Milnthorpe, England, some acreage near the town, and a seven-acre estate, including a house, in the hamlet of Hale. In 1805, the year after he received his inheritance, James married Agnes Taylor. They were wed on December 23, the same day Joseph Smith was born in Sharon, Vermont.

They lived in Burton, Westmorland, where their first child was born. They moved to the inherited house in Milnthorpe in 1808. Four children were born there. About 1814, the family moved to Liverpool. In 1819, they moved into Yew Tree House on their seven-acre Green Side Farm near the village of Hale. Elizabeth, Agnes, William, George, and Edward were born while they lived here.

In 1830, the family immigrated to Canada. James purchased a farm in Toronto. Parley P. Pratt preached the gospel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints here and part of the Taylor family accepted it as truth. James and Agnes joined the Church in May 1836.

The Taylors set out for Missouri in the Fall of 1838, arriving there as mobs were driving the Saints from that state. Agnes and James eventually moved to a wilderness area thirty miles north of Nauvoo, to a place called Oquawka. While living here they provided a three-week temporary hiding place for the Prophet Joseph Smith while he was seeking to avoid his enemies.

In 1846-1847, they moved to Nauvoo and to Winter Quarters, Nebraska with the other early Saints. Then on to the Salt Lake Valley in September of 1847.

They lived until 1849 in a section of the Old Fort then moved into a log cabin west of Main Street and south of North Temple Street.
